

A postdoc position (fixed term research-only “adiunkt” position, in Polish terminology) in the Chair of Logic, Philosophy of Science and Epistemology is available at the Department of Philosophy, University of Gdansk, Poland. The position is to start between August 1, 2020 and December 30, 2020 (decision will be based on practical considerations) and lasts for 12-14 months. Deadline: applications will be considered on a rolling basis, but should be received by June 31, 2020 at the latest.

The successful candidate will be required to pursue their research within the ongoing research project titled Conceptual, formal and practical aspects of forensic and judicial applications of probabilistic tools funded by the Polish National Science Centre, participate in the research activities of the Chair, in the life of the department, and in the administrative work as necessary. An opportunity of acquiring teaching experience might arise, but there are no teaching obligations associated with the position. There is no obligation to speak or learn Polish. The applicant will be also required to prepare and submit a research grant application with the Polish National Science Centre, but with no obligation to accept the research grant if awarded.

Candidates are required to:

- have obtained a PhD in a discipline relevant to the research project by the time of the application,
- have carried out research in a relevant field, having published in good international academic journals.

Applications should be submitted in digital version only. Applications should be sent by email, in the form of a single PDF file named:

LASTNAME-FIRSTNAME.PDF (e.g. URBANIAK-RAFAL.PDF).

Each application should be composed of the following parts (in the following order):

1. Title page with name and contact data (including email address),
2. CV, including a publication list and describing relevant education and research experience,
3. A covering letter describing in ca 1000 words your research plan,
4. A sample paper, not related to the PhD thesis (if such a paper exists),
5. PhD thesis,
6. A scanned copy of the PhD diploma, or an official confirmation that the degree have been obtained.

Digital applications are to be sent to both addresses:

ifs@univ.gda.pl

rfl.urbaniak@gmail.com

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Applications should be made in English. Incomplete applications will be rejected without further notice. The decision is final with no right to appeal. The University does not provide housing. The University reserves the right to close the hiring process without selecting a candidate, or to extend the application deadline.

Information about the research group can be obtained at <http://lopsegdansk.blogspot.com/>

Information about the University of Gdansk can be obtained at:

<http://en.ug.edu.pl/>

Information about Gdansk can be obtained at:

<http://www.poland.travel/en/gdansk>

For informal inquiries, please contact prof. dr. hab. Rafal Urbaniak at rfl.urbaniak@gmail.com.