Dear colleagues,

We are honored to invite you to take part in a scientific international meeting. This is one of three conferences implemented as part of the international project THRIECE Teaching for Holistic, Relational and Inclusive Early Childhood Education.

The project is based on three principles:

1. Holistic, which emphasizes the wide overview of the child and takes into deep consideration the cognitive, emotional, social and various experiences of children and their interests.
2. Inclusive, supporting socio-cultural diversity and respect, opposing the exclusion of children due to their different cultural traditions and social background.
3. Relational, emphasizes sense of positive relationships and interactions between teachers and children, children and their peers, as well as parents and the environment and the local community.

The project was created as a result of cooperation of several research centers (Marino Institute of Education in Dublin, Trinity College Dublin, University in Porto and University of Gdansk) and pre-school and early school institutions from Ireland, Portugal and Poland (Carlow Educate Together National School, An Cosan, Tallaght Play Together Childcare, Carlow; Agrupamento de Escolas Alexandre Herculano, Agrupamento de Escolas Soares dos Reis; Play and Education Center "Żyrafa", Gdańsk; School and Kindergarten No. 3, Gdynia).

Our meeting is focused on a holistic overview of the child and their education.

Participants are welcome to take part in following discussions:

1. recognition of children's cognitive potential, emotional and social competences
2. creating learning space, time and tasks to activate children
3. holistic learning and teaching methods
4. declining barriers in applying holistic solutions in working with children
